for many, time in its passing is nothing more than a dimension to be measured in hours, weeks, and uneventful years. to us it should mean much more. it should express a development in ideas and a growth into a new awareness of people around us. the continuum of time should result in a feeling of accomplishment—a sense of knowing and understanding ourselves. this decade of the 70's is our time; our chance to shape something better. we have the ability to make a beginning toward solving old problems with new answers. let's use it.

In his few years as physical education teacher at mills, kenneth hoagland has earned the respect and admiration of the senior class and the entire student body. we want to thank him for his constant enthusiasm and his eagerness to help us whenever he can.

our thanks to mrs. annie bigwood for helping to maintain the well-kept appearance of the inside of our school.

in appreciation

we would like mr. bruno fabbri to know that we take pride in the fine condition in which he keeps our school. we sincerely appreciate his nine years of dedicated service at mills.

principal's message

one of my proudest realizations is that after twenty years of being associated with young people i have never known a "routine" day. this is true largely because with young people such as you, one keeps young in spirit and outlook.

my fervent wish for each of you is that in all the years which god grants to you that you will remain "young at heart" and that you will never know a "routine" day.

Constant W. Blum

when we finally get these yearbooks we will be in our last two weeks as seniors at mills. it would be a lie to say (as most sentimental yearbooks usually gush) that our years here have been perfectly idyllic ones. for the most part though, in ten years we'll probably all be laughing at the problems driving us crazy today; thinking we never had it so good.

american field service exchange student

Fatih Ahmet Rifki

fatih rifki, our second foreign exchange student, came to the u s. late last summer when he first arrived, he had some problem understanding people because he said americans talk too fast fatih came from lefka, a small town in cyprus he had been going to a small school of 550 students. it was quite an experience for him to come into our senior home room which contained twice as many people as his class in lefka. fatih thinks that because there are so many people, the students in the senior class don't know each other well enough our exchange student's curriculum in cyprus was totally different from milis' school was in session six days a week from eight in the morning until one in the afternoon. he could not choose his courses and was required to take thirteen major subjects fatih tells us that due to american westerns much of the older generation in his country believes that america is still inhabited by cowboys and indians

if fatih has gained nothing else from his visit to the united states, he has discovered the american hot dog which is now his favorite food when fatih gets home he'll complete his high school education and will serve one year in the army. then he will attend a college in turkey he plans to be a doctor or an engineer

field hockey

the girls' field hockey team ended its season with a 3-8 record. even though our season was not very successful, the girls did improve their skill considerably and toward the end of the season they began to mature as a team.

the team was led by co-captains gail hamernik and jessie norton. jessie did a truly outstanding job defensively. she was one of the main reasons our rivals knew we were in the game all the way. jessie is a very dedicated player and she is one that will certainly be missed on the team next year.

hopefully next year denise gaylord, the only freshman on the varsity hockey team, will be able to fill-in jessie's shoes.

of course, what is a defense without its offense. a key part of our offense was gail hamernik, who, even though she did not score very many goals, set up numerous strategic plays which allowed our other forwards to score the goals.

the entire hockey team worked hard as a team. next year with the majority of players returning we are looking forward to a very successful season.

the spartan soccer team had looked quite promising in pre-season practice and looked forward to winning the n.w.c. championship. the team had great potential as twelve lettermen were returning and the entire first-line backfield from the '68 team remained intact however, a combination of hard luck, the inability to score, and injuries to key players ruined spartan chances and the team finished 2-11-1. the record does not tell the whole story, as six of the defeats came by the narrow margin of 1-0

the team did well on defense and received outstanding performances from co-captain mark svetz, ken van, and goalie brandon johnson. backup goal tender dave keepin did a fine job when injuries sidelined johnson. co-captain pat mccarthy covered midfield well in the halfback position and late in the season bolstered line play. the forward line, which didn't move the ball effectively until late in the season, was led by seniors reggie stark, dave dayton, dennis hannon, and brian jones mark svetz was honored with a place on the n.w.c. all-star team cross country

considering the fact that we only had a nine-man team this year, we are happy about our 7-7 record. everyone on the team practiced hard and ran well!

vincent genovese, tom bendoraitis, charlie wilcox, and kerth aeschlimann did a fine job of supporting the top five runners in the course of a grueling thirteen-meet season. vince got the well-deserved lawrence m connors most improved runner award ron nedorostek and ray seddon, both on our team for the first time, made the top ten in most of the meets. the drive they showed this year practically assures them of top five status next season.

kim meisinger and eric rahn, often threatened by ray, battled each other all season for second position in the mills' lineup our top man for the last two years, peter darasz, graduates this year. peter lost first place only three times this year and went all the way to the c.i.a.c. open cross country run at uconn where he took thirty-second in a field of over one hundred connecticut runners. he practiced twelve months of the year and we are sorry to see him go this year's basketball team had to make the big switch from girls' basketball rules to the boys' rules. they did not have any trouble adjusting; in fact, they seemed to play a better game with only five girls on the court instead of the usual six co-captain, pat duquette, the only senior on the team, keeps the team together and will be greatly missed because of her outside set shot. co-captain anne sokolow is an excellent rebounder and has a good shot. naomi firme is a good playmaker. denise gaylord, only a freshman, and sharon oaks, an agile junior, will be returning with their experience to help the team in '71

the 1969-70 spartan quintet has qualified for a spot in the c i a c class "b" tournament at this point, the hoopsters have a 8-4 league record and rank third in the hot northwest conference race the team has a 10-6 overall record starting frontcourt positions are held down by a pair of senior forwards, david keepin and reggie stark along with junior center roger lawton brian jones, a senior, and jeff burger, a junior, are running mates at the guard positions nick spino the versatile sixth man, is valuable as a swingman who can operate at either guard or forward stark possesses an accurate outside shot and hits the boards well for those all-important rebounds co-captains jones and keepin provide team leadership as well as clutch hoops. jeff burger, the only sub six-footer on the squad is the team's outstanding ball handler and playmaker and is also a good defensive player roger lawton, at 6'6" the tallest spartan is becoming a well-rounded center who will, along with burger, be returning for the 1970-71 campaign although this team has easily gained entrance into the state tournament its trek to the championship game will be more difficult to accomplish than last year since this squad must play in the "b" classification having been moved up from last year's class "c" status long after we've forgotten the formula for the volume of a cylinder, when we can't remember that commas never go before adverbial phrases, and after we've pushed the date of the missouri compromise out of our minds, we'll still be remembering a certain basketball game, a play we were in, or our senior prom.

wall sundials are rare and unusual in this country. the sun dial on the south side of the studio was designed by ernest g. yalden, astronomer in 1930, for arthur and lois lenski covey.

the sundial is made of copper strips nailed to the wall. the signs of the zodiac form a decorative border. the sundial shows correct time by throwing a shadow on the roman numerals, except for slight seasonal changes.

it is located in harwinton, connecticut at lat. 41 46' 30" n. long 73 3w.

mr. yalden gave the motto absque sole, absque usu (without sun, without the figures above the sundial along "it's later than you think." this is one of the oldest sundial mottos, dating back to medieval times. its intention is to remind the looker of the closeness of eternity the figures above the sundial along the roof of the studio are one of the finest examples of early american folk art the sun dial pictured in these photographs is positioned on jessie norton's barn. we thought the inscription—"it's later than you think"—to be in keeping with our over-all theme of time and very appropriate for the closing page of our book.

for each of us, this time next year will bring different things. some of us will be married, others of us will be out in the business world; and many of us, who started all over again as freshmen, will be concluding our first year at college.

it's odd how some people think that because we've completed four years of high school, we must have our whole futures all mapped out. we are expected to have a profession chosen, and above all, be a big success in whatever we do

that's not really what matters. what is important is the foresight to use our time to accomplish our own personal goals before we're old, gray and rocking-chair bound
